Parents session notes

What's happening?

- Nearly all of what children do online they do outside school
- Schools alone can not help children to stay safe online.
- Children often spend too long on social media and online gaming (addiction – it's a drug)
- Their physical and mental health suffers, too tired to learn, self harm, suffer from depression.
- Children are not having the opportunity to have open discussion offline about their anxiety and issues that come from what they really see, online.

The Internet is great!

'Online' means connected to the Internet

The Internet has some great advantages

The Internet is part of our everyday lives at home and at school making it possible for us to do amazing and fun things.

You can learn.

You can play games with other people from around the world.

You can buy and order things. This is called 'online shopping'.

You can look at websites for information. This is called 'browsing'.

You can listen to music. You can also 'download' and store music onto your device.

You can watch films, videos and television programmes.

You can chat with people, share pictures and messages. This is 'social media'.

Children grow up with the internet

For many grown-ups, it just appeared

Page 2

So – what is real the problem?

Not everyone is who they say they are and some are E-Vil
Children haven't yet got the life skills needed to recognise the real dangers

Page 3

Electronic gadgets – the cheap babysitter

It becomes a drug - children become hooked from an early age

In school - good understanding of the theory in how to stay safe online

At home – unsupervised , they struggle to apply the theory and see risk

Stranger – Danger!

People can be E-Vil on the Internet

What is a stranger?

A stranger is anyone you don't know. A lot of people on the Internet are strangers and some are nasty like E-Vil, pretending to be someone they are not.

If you do not talk to your child, someone else will

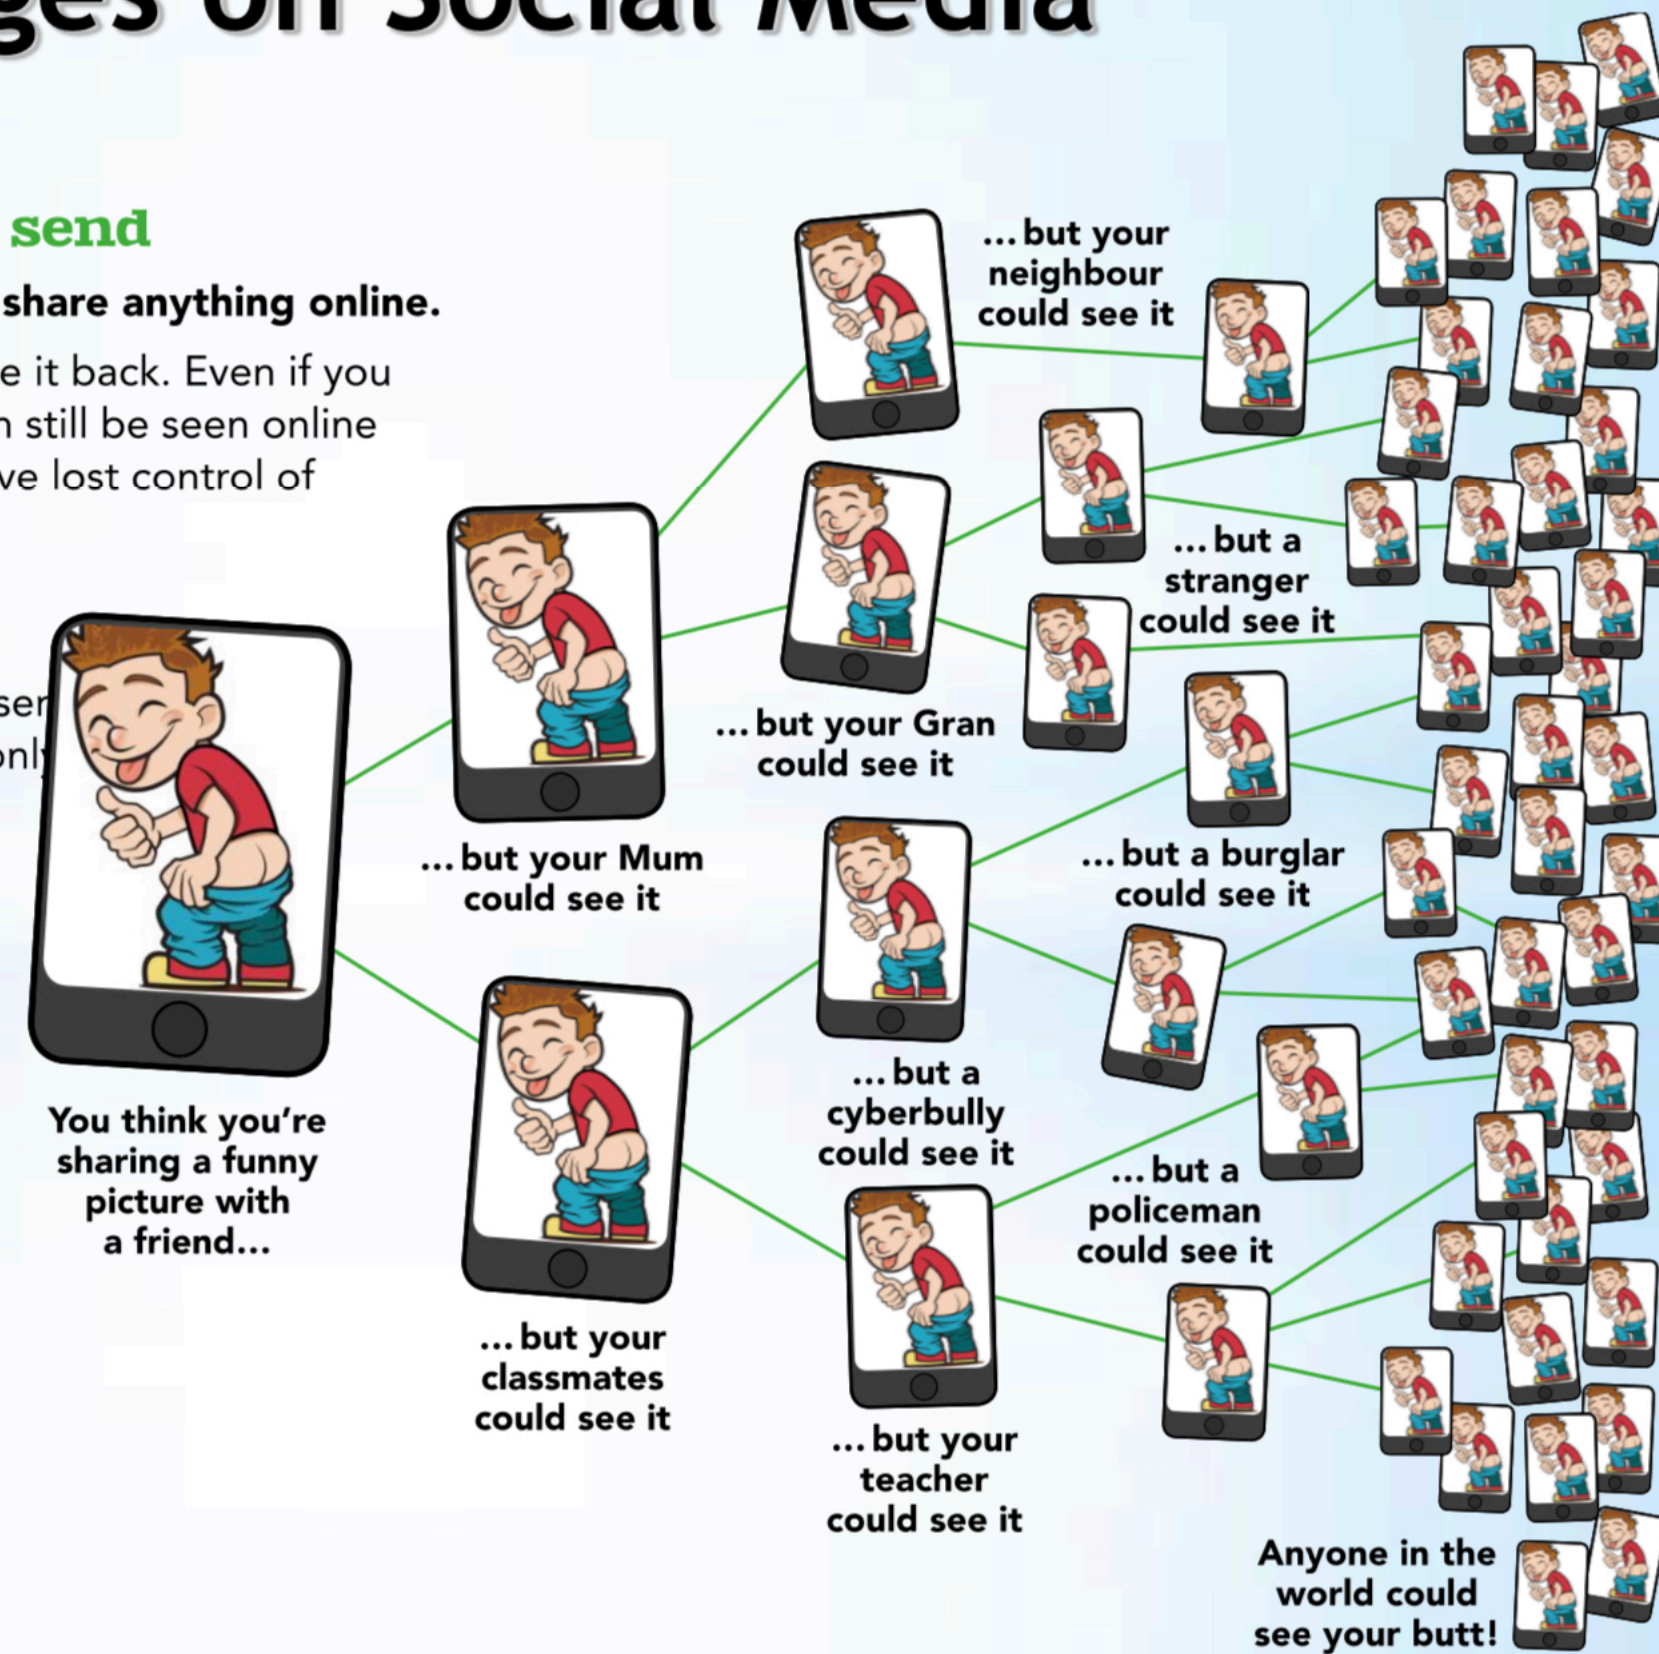

Sharing images on Social Media

Think before you send

Think carefully before you share anything online.

Once it's gone you can't take it back. Even if you delete it, what you share can still be seen online somewhere else and you have lost control of who can view it.

Many people could see it including your family and everyone at school. Do not send anything that could embarrass you – not only now, but it also could harm you in the future when you apply for big school, university or a job. People can check back to see what you were like.

Once shared- you lose control of it !

Sexting and Cyberbullying criminal actions

If your child is over 10 and has or sends an indecent image of someone under the age of 18 , it is a criminal offence

- The police can get involved
- Your child can get a criminal record

Parent guide

Make it safe to talk

Children try to manage situations themselves if they feel they may be banned or shouted at

Always discuss regularly with them what they do online and who with Regularly remind them to think before they share.

Be quick to report

The quicker an image is reported, the easier it is for internet platforms and the police to take the image offline and stop it being shared. Parental supervision, communication, education and guidance is your safety net.

Left alone - everything they see and read they will start to believe

Children will start to educate themselves and think its normal
Especially with social media

Social media - the influencer

Social media can very quickly poison and negatively influence young minds

Everyone wants to be a You Tuber, an Influencer, a gamer

Newspapers and tv, a lot is censored and controlled

On the internet it is not

An influencers aim is to build their fan base

Skip's Safety Net

Some influencers can be poor role models

- Fake news
- Exaggeration
- Scaremongering

Young people are very likely to come across many different types of influencers

Leaving young children alone, online in their bedrooms is like letting strangers into your home without parents realising

Everyone wants to be on the camera

There is a likes culture - feel they need to respond

- Seeking validation
- Positive comments
- Complements

Can lead them to create risky behaviour

Parents are mostly unaware or maybe they don't think their child is capable

Social media have age ratings for a reason!

Most social media platforms require users to be of a minimum age to use their services. Lying about age and providing false information is very common among children. Unfortunately many parents are aware this is happening

Parent guide

Make it safe to talk

Children can be exposed to unsuitable viewings : Strangers, Violence, Sexual , Bad language etc

If your child follows an online influencer , then you do the same
Follow your child.

Always let your child know that they should never purchase or subscribe to anything online without gaining your permission first or arrange to meet someone who they have met online.

Let them know that they do not have to feel as though they have done something wrong, nobody is going to get cross and it is not their fault

Otherwise children try to manage situations themselves if they feel they may be banned or shouted at

By Mistake

Trusting children to be responsible cannot prevent them from seeing unsuitable content

Much of that content is delivered to children without them actively looking for it.

ALL NEWS ISN'T ALWAYS GOOD NEWS

Often the case with an event as serious as a terrorist attack or violent demonstration

Children are highly likely to see, hear or read about what happened in non-child friendly terms

I'm scared

Pretending that nothing happened is no longer an option

Be honest

Explain anxiety and worry is normal

Let them know they are safe and its good to talk

Don't keep it secret

Be ready to talk , listen and support them with critical thinking

Brainwashing

Social media ,online gaming and fake news, can lead to grooming

E-Vil people search the Internet looking for your personal information left behind on social media or by pretending to be a child playing online games.

Some may try to trick you into thinking its ok to share rude messages and photos where you are not fully clothed.

Some may try to trick you into thinking its ok to video chat through your webcam but really they are recording you secretly without you knowing.

Think! Could this be E-Vil talking?

Can we video chat?

I think you are very pretty.

You can trust me.

Can you send me a picture of yourself?

Block requests to be a friend if you do not know the sender.

Blackmail

E-Vil people can threaten to show your rude messages, photos and videos to your family and friends to embarrass you if you do not continue to do what they want you to. This is called 'blackmail' and against the law.

It can all lead to people making bad choices, joining gangs and radicalisation.

Prevention

Young people are doing the dying and killings
Parents have to be the eyes and ears in the community

Page 15

Talking and listening is your Safety Net

Engage in your child's online activities, encourage discussion, take time to listen and be able to act appropriately.

Start to reduce risk- it all helps

Parents need to take responsibility :

Speak to your internet provider if you are unsure

Create rules - Do not allow any devices in their bedrooms

Monitor the sites-games , ask them to take off headphones so you can hear in

Reduce screen time- Switching off allows young people to connect more with the people they are with.

Encourage playing outdoors, sports and develop other interests

Talk to the school, make sure academic work is up to date, look at their sleep habits

Always develop an atmosphere where it is safe to talk about what they have done (or seen or heard) online without risk of being told off, or having their devices taken away!

Only then we can help young people to open up when they need to

Always encourage your child to Tell a parent or trusted adult, like a teacher.

Tell an older brother or sister.

Tell Childline.

They will know how to help
